Clearwater, FL – Today, Adam Ross announced the endorsement of the Sun Coast Police Benevolent Association.

“Our police officers in Pinellas County work so incredibly hard to protect our homes, businesses, and schools,” said Adam Ross. “It is a great honor to receive the endorsement from the Sun Coast Police Benevolent Association, and I look forward to supporting their critical mission as Pinellas Tax Collector and helping to provide the resources to do their job safely.”

Since 2018, Adam has served as the Executive Director of the State Attorney’s Office, where he is tasked to help with supervising more than 400 employees and administering the agency’s over $49 million budget. In recent years, Adam helped create a new case management system that rapidly increased efficiency and saved taxpayer money.

Adam is an active member of the Pinellas County community and was elected Chairman of the Pinellas GOP in 2022. Now, he is running for Tax Collector because he knows his experience in budget management, personnel management, and public service will help this essential office deliver on its constitutional commitment to our families.

Adam and his wife, Tara, live in Clearwater where they attend the Episcopal Church of the Ascension and Adam serves on the board of non-profit Hope Villages America.
